1. INTRODUCTION

This summary report presents the findings of the Employee Engagement Survey conducted by the Human Resource Executive Startup on May 10, 2026. The survey was administered to all five members of the team, achieving a 100% response rate. It comprised 13 rated questions on a 1–5 Likert scale and 2 open-ended questions, organised across four thematic areas: Job Satisfaction, Work Environment & Remote Experience, Leadership & Communication, and Growth & Recognition.

2. SCORE SNAPSHOT BY SECTION

3.7/5.0 Job Satisfaction	4.1/5.0 Work Environment & Remote	3.7/5.0 Leadership & Communication	2.9/5.0 Growth & Recognition
-----------------------------	--------------------------------------	---------------------------------------	---------------------------------

● Strong = 4.0–5.0 | ● Moderate = 3.0–3.9 | ● Needs Attention = below 3.0

3. KEY FINDINGS

3.1 Strengths

- Remote Work Infrastructure (4.6/5.0): Q7 returned the highest score in the survey. Four of five employees awarded the maximum rating, reflecting strong confidence in the organisation's technology provision and the remote work setup allowance.
- Managerial Communication (4.2/5.0): Employees feel well-informed by their line managers. EMP-01 and EMP-04 both rated this area at 5/5, signalling particularly strong people management within the HR & People Operations team.
- Work-Life Balance (4.0/5.0): The organisation's fully remote model is well-received, with the majority of respondents affirming that the company supports a healthy balance between work and personal life.

3.2 Areas Needing Improvement

- Learning & Development (2.8/5.0): The lowest-scoring area in the entire survey. EMP-02 and EMP-05 both rated this at 2/5. Structured L&D access is widely cited as the most urgent organisational improvement needed.
- Employee Recognition (3.0/5.0): Despite a strong team culture, formal recognition of individual contributions is inconsistent. Only EMP-04 rated this area highly; all others scored it at 3 or below.
- Leadership Feedback Culture (3.2/5.0): While employees feel heard, they lack confidence that feedback consistently translates into visible leadership action. All respondents except EMP-04 scored this at 3/5.

4. OPEN FEEDBACK THEMES (Q14 & Q15)

What employees ENJOY most (Q14)	Priority IMPROVEMENTS suggested (Q15)
Collaborative team culture & sense of purpose	Structured L&D — certifications and courses (EMP-01)
Flexibility of remote work & trust from organisation	Better workload planning during peak periods (EMP-02)
Autonomy in workflow and delivery of results	Regular feedback loop / monthly manager reviews (EMP-03)
Quality of leadership & organisational direction	Formal recognition programme for team wins (EMP-04)
Organisational mission & positive team energy	Improved onboarding documentation for new joiners (EMP-05)

5. RECOMMENDATIONS

#	Recommendation	Action Required	Owner	Timeline
1	Launch Structured L&D Programme	Partner with CIPM/SHRM/Coursera. Allocate development budget per employee.	HR Director	60 days
2	Monthly Recognition Programme	Introduce 'Star Performer of Month'. Public shoutouts via internal channels.	HR Assistant	30 days
3	Workload Review Check-ins	Add workload discussion to monthly 1-on-1s. Create simple tracker to flag risks.	Line Managers	June 2026
4	Onboarding Resource Hub	Build a centralised HRMS hub with policies, guides, and FAQs for all new joiners.	HR Assistant	45 days
5	Follow-up Pulse Survey	5-question pulse survey in November 2026 to track improvements on this report.	HR Assistant	Nov 2026

6. CONCLUSION

With an overall engagement score of 3.8 out of 5.0, the Human Resource Executive Startup has a workforce that is moderately engaged, connected to the mission, and appreciative of its remote-first culture and managerial relationships. The most urgent priority is addressing the significant gap in Learning & Development access and formalising employee recognition — two areas where relatively small investments can yield meaningful improvements in engagement, retention, and performance.

It is recommended that the findings of this report be shared transparently with all team members within 30 days, reinforcing the organisation's commitment to listening and acting on employee feedback. A follow-up pulse survey scheduled for November 2026 will allow the HR team to measure the impact of the actions taken and sustain upward momentum in engagement scores.
